

---

Oil Search employees continue to help save lives

PNG Media Release
29 January, 2018

---

Oil Search Port Moresby based employees have helped save more lives at the Port Moresby General Hospital, through their ongoing participation in the corporate blood drive.

“We are delighted that 27 of our staff were able to successfully donate blood to the Port Moresby General Hospital Blood Bank at our recent blood drive,” said Dave Weeden, Oil Search Medical and Occupational Health Service Manager.

One of those that donated on the day was Arnold Leis from Oil Search Human Resources team, who started donating blood in 2015.

“It is very rewarding,” Arnold said.

“The small bag of blood that you give can make a huge difference so why not donate blood and help save a life.”

Obahakari Nouairi, Oil Search Business Analyst has been another regular donor and says the blood donation enables him to check his personal health status as well.

“It’s a great way to check my blood pressure along with other issues I may have,” Obahakari said.

“Oil Search has a motto “Committed to PNG” and I can think of no other way that demonstrates that commitment, then by supporting such a worthy cause.”

He also encouraged more Oil Search employees to be a part of the next blood drive which will be held in March/April.

Oil Search has supported the corporate blood drive since 2015.

End.

For further information, please contact:

Ruth Waram
Manager, PNG Communications
Mobile: 71906078

Photos

L-R: Arnold Leis and Abenny Mokupe from Oil Search Human Resources were happy to donate blood last month at the Company's Port Moresby office clinic.

Obahakari Nouairi, Oil Search Business Analyst says blood donation also helps him know his personal health status.