Oil Search employees' donation helps Cheshire Home's expenses

14 May 2015

Oil Search's Gereia Aopi, Executive General Manager External and Government Affairs and Sustainability, recently presented Cheshire disAbility Services with a cheque for K2,127 donated by Oil Search employees in the Company's Sydney and Brisbane offices.

Benard Ayieko General Manager of the Cheshire disAbility Services, sincerely thanked everyone who contributed to the donation by taking part in a number of small fundraising initiatives in Australia during 2014.

The money will be used for meals and healthcare supplies for the Cheshire Home, a house managed by Cheshire disAbility Services that has 22 full-time residents with a range of disabilities, many of whom are from less-fortunate family backgrounds.

Cheshire Home aims to make a positive difference to those living with disabilities, their families and their carers. Oil Search is delighted to continue offering financial support for the organisation, which relies completely on corporate and public donations to fund its daily operational expenses.

Around 200 Port Moresby residents rely on Cheshire disAbility Services for assistance. The wide range of support services they offer includes education and early childhood development, physiotherapy and training for families and carers of those with disabilities.
